Physics, maths and more

The Tata Institute of Fundamental Research (TIFR) is an Indian national research academy in the fields of mathematics and theoretical physics. It was founded in 1945 and is located in Mumbai, Maharashtra, India. The institute has research centers in various fields, including mathematics, physics, and computational biology. It is known for its contributions to cosmology, particle physics, and condensed matter physics.

The TIFR offers undergraduate and graduate programs in physics, mathematics, and related fields. It provides opportunities for advanced research in areas such as theoretical physics, astrophysics, computational biology, and condensed matter physics.

All about Kishore Vaigyanik Pratisthan (KVPY)

Kishore Vaigyanik Pratisthan (KVPY) is a national scholarship program in India for students who wish to pursue a career in science. The program is designed to identify and support talented students in the fields of science and mathematics. KVPY provides financial support, mentorship, and opportunities for advanced research to selected students.

KVPY offers scholarships to students in their final year of high school and to those who have completed their undergraduate studies. The scholarship covers tuition fees, living expenses, and provides access to research opportunities.

The program is administered by the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore. It is open to students who are interested in pursuing a career in science and who meet the eligibility criteria.

The program is conducted in various streams, including:

- Stream-SA: For students preparing for the IIT-JEE examination.
- Stream-SB: For students preparing for the IIT-JEE examination and those who have completed their Class XII board examinations.
- Stream-SC: For students preparing for Class XII board examinations and those who have completed their Class XII board examinations.
- Stream-SX: For students preparing for Class XII board examinations and those who have completed their Class XII board examinations.
